This is an exhaustive list of the conflicts of interest and business entanglements I have with players and teams that I expect to compete against in professional tournaments. Business entanglement include, but are not limited to, shared management, shared ownership of entities, licensing, and loans. I understand that failure to report my conflicts of interest may result in my disqualification from events and/or forfeiture of proceeds.

|----------------------------|--|
| Other party: | Team Turkey, Team Aardvark, Team Bunny, Team Hippos |
| Nature of conflict: | My team (Team Chicken) co-owns a corporate entity with the teams listed above: League of Animals. The arrangement includes co-owning assets and debt, sharing profits, and a commitment to participate in 3 years of competition. We are required to promote each other in social media and other PR. More details are attached at the end of this document. |

Other party: Fnatic

Nature of conflict: A minority investor in Envy Gaming, Inc., Hersh Interactive Group OWL, LLC (“HIG OWL”), has an affiliate that is a completely passive investor in an entity called Raptor FNTC Holdings LLC (“Raptor”) that owns some shares of Sannpa Limited, which (we believe) is the entity that owns Fnatic. It is important to note that the HIG OWL affiliate:
Has NO control and ZERO influence over the Raptor entity (which we believe is controlled by the Palotta family) and obviously therefore, absolutely NO control whatsoever and ZERO influence whatsoever regarding anything at all to do with Fnatic; Has no ability to sell its completely passive interest in Raptor; Receives no information about the finances or operations of Fnatic; and Has no contact with anyone at Fnatic.
